Over the years I've made a habit of reading and using a variety of Christian devotional material. Most of it is average and ordinary, but a few are truly blessings. Foster and Smith's "Devotional Classics" is a devotional book that fits into the latter category. There's so much I could say about the book, but I'll summarize why this book could be beneficial to so many by making 5 points. 1. The devotional selections are taken from saints from all ages of the church. The saints range from Church Fathers such as Augustine and Chrysostom, to medieval and 16th-17th century writers such as Bernard of Clairvaux, Lancelot Andrewes, and John Calvin, to modern writers such as C.S. Lewis and Dallas Willard. 2. The selections introduce us to a wide variety of devotional writers who we are now free to investigate further for ourselves. Foster and Smith provide a brief background for each devotional writer, before the devotional selection. 52 different writers are represented, coming from a wide variety of backgrounds and perspectives. The selections are brief enough to read in a few minutes but long enough to give us a flavor of the person who is writing.³ The devotionals are grouped according to 6 sections that represent different spiritualities: "Preparing for the Spiritual Life," "The Prayer-Filled Life," "The Virtuous Life," "The Spirit-Empowered Life," "The Compassionate Life," and "The Word-Centered Life."⁴ There are additional helpful materials after each devotional selection: a relevant Bible passage, questions for reflection, and suggested exercises.⁵ The material can be used profitably by either individuals or groups, and the 52 readings could be read over the course of a year, one per week.
