Customer Reviews

I ordered this book after looking at reviews for other "You Choose" books in this series, hoping I would be pleased too. I am. As a homeschooler, I was looking for a high interest book for my third grade son as we study the Middle Ages. I'm very pleased with this book--aesthetically, it's quite visually appealing. I was expecting just pulp fiction pages, but the pages are glossy and include color pictures throughout. At the end, there are several resources including a glossary, timeline, index, bibliography, "Read More," and "Other Paths to Explore" sections. Looks great--can't wait to show it my son.

This series actually got my 9 year old grandson, who is into electronics and not books, to ask my for two more titles for Christmas and an additional two for his birthday. He loved the way the decision was his and he could read and re-read to choose a different path.

After five choices where it ended in a pool of the protagonist's blood, my 6-yr-old grew weary. After one round of dying, my husband said he probably would have died with the other choice, and sure enough, we went back and the other choice was an equally devastating death. The stories seemed abruptly short with little character or plot development. A different choose your own adventure book, "Treasures of the Forgotten City" is a longer read to get to the end, but captivates his attention more and give a head's up on the cover that there are 17 perils out of a possible 26 endings. There is enough intrigue and tension to keep him wanting to read even if it ends in a peril.

Sent this to my grandson for Christmas because he loves to read these series of books. He was really surprised and couldn't wait to read it! It arrived in perfect condition and just in time for Christmas.

I have a group of boys in my 3rd grade classroom who are very picky readers. It has been a challenge this year to find things that they are interested in reading. ALL of them read and loved this book and immediately asked me if I had any more like it! In my opinion, that rates five stars!

He read it several times. It was fun getting to decide if you wanted to attack the opponent or defend your castle.

I took this book to my 2 grandsons who are reluctant readers. Everyone in the family got involved. Now they are asking for & reading other books in the series. What a great way to get a knowledge base for studying any period of history. Bravo!

My ten year old boy (who hates reading) loved this book! He read every scenario in one day and was asking me to buy him more books like it!
