I am not including this in my Christmas box of books for my 7 and 9 year-old grandsons. I am putting it in my car in case we ever have a "Nana, do you have any more books for us in here?" moment. What even marginally curious child would be intrigued by facts such as these: The SuperSoaker water gun was originally called the Power Drencher; Zucchini's are about 95 percent water; President Gerald Ford once worked as a park ranger; You can buy Thanksgiving-themed gumballs with flavors such as cranberry, turkey, and pumpkin pie...? This book does no credit to National Geographic, and I suggest that Shoppers leave out of their carts.

This is an excellent way to encourage reading in young folks. I love this book. It is great to have with you as you wait for an appointment or for a flight. My kids really have enjoyed having this book. You won't be bored for sure. I recommend.

My daughter loved this book I recommended this book to all the parents that I come in contact with. I also recommend the book Kid Miracle if you have not had a chance to read it. I hope this review was helpful to you.

I LOVE this book. Bought copies for my 3 grandsons (ages 8 & 10) and one for myself. Filled with weird and interesting facts with excellent photos. I'm sure this could become a very popular book for kids and school libraries. I do feel there could have been footnotes sighting where the information/facts came from, or a link to find that info on-line. (Some of us like further "proof"). Highly recommended.

For a girl that loves animals and wants to some day become a veterinarian, this is the perfect funny book. My 10 year old is a true animal lover. She says that she wants to be a vet and change the way people view wild animals - and love on the tame ones. She finds this book hilarious and is constantly sharing one of the 300 weird but true facts. Some are hard to believe, but are apparently true. This books is definitely a win in our household and we are looking forward to another edition.

Love this book. My 9 year old granddaughter was told to practice her reading, so she reads this book out loud to me. We not only discuss the facts of "Weird but true" paragraphs, I also explain the meaning of words that she does not under stand. Provides great "together" time for us.

This is a great little book, we don't sit down and read it in one shot rather, I read one or two facts every day to my son. We have both been very entertained with his content, and I highly recommend purchasing this book if you would like to introduce some off-the-wall facts to your kiddo, and yourself :)

My teenager loves books of facts so by now we have all seven versions of this book. There are very few repeated facts between any of the books - he LOVES this series. The information is presented well and is interesting for all ages (at least in our family!). If trivia is your thing, this is the book for you.
